

NATIONAL NURSING ETHICS CONFERENCE

Everyday Ethics Rooted in Trust

MARCH 13-14, 2025

The 2025 National Nursing Ethics Conference in Los Angeles, California will emphasize the crucial role of trust in health care – whether between patients, their families, team members, leaders, researchers, administration, or the community. It will explore the history and impact of nursing ethics as an entity unto itself, the importance of nurse integrity, and how preventive ethics can transform moral distress into moral strength. The conference will also highlight the revised ANA Code of Ethics for Nurses, reinforcing our professional values and ethical agency.

This conference continues to provide ethics education that addresses the everyday demands of clinical practice and features expert speakers, continuing education credit, and the opportunity to engage with colleagues from across the nation.

“The expertise of every single speaker was wildly humbling but also incredibly inclusive.”

Ethics of Caring is excited to welcome the following speakers to the 2025 National Nursing Ethics Conference:

Carol Taylor, PhD, MSN, RN, FAAN

Georgetown University School of Nursing

Aimee Milliken, PhD, RN, HEC-C

Boston College Connell School of Nursing

Cynda Rushton, PhD, RN, FAAN

Johns Hopkins Berman Institute of Bioethics and the School of Nursing

Greg Boyle, SJ

Homeboy Industries

Marilyn McEntyre, PhD

New College Berkeley; Western Theological Seminary;
Oblate School of Theology

Nurses and social workers attending the conference on March 13-14 can receive up to 16.25 hours of continuing education credit.

WWW.ETHICSOFCARING.ORG

